As we stated, the alarm of fire in Weilington Street last night was occasioned by the breaking of a lamp. No damage whatever was done. Nevertheless, we must compliment the Fire Brigade on the promptitude with which they answered the summons. The early arrival of the firemen, and the rapidity with which the steam fire-engines were got along to the Prays, for the purpose, if necessary, to pump salt water, says much for the smartness and officioncy of the Brigade. An enormous crowd gathered in the vicinity of the house where the alarm was raised, and it was a considerable time before they made up their minds that the outbreak was averted, and dispersod.

THE discovery of a process by which the colours of nature could be reproduced by photography, without the aid of pigments dyes, or colouring matter of any kind, has long been the ambition of many investigators, and now we have the authoritative statement of Sir Henry Trueman Wood Secretary of the Society of Arts, that this search has been reached. M. Villedieu Chassagne, of Paris, has lately submitted Invention of himself and Dr Adrien Michel Dansac, by which photographs can be produced showing the actual colours of the objects photographed. The process, a short account of which is given in the last number of the Society of Arts Journal, is a simple and inexpensive one.

A Philippine friend, commenting on the translation of the official account of the operations against the Cavito Reliels appearing in the China Mail of Feb. 23, thinks the Spanish authorities might serve their cause better, and not bring themselves into ridicule, by studying the geography of their country before drawing up 'varnished reports' in which imagination plays so prominent a part;

Hongkong, March 10. Sir, -If it be correct, as 'Ex-Velunicer states, that the British texpayor is willing to entortain in London a detuchment of Violanteers from Hongkong, then I see no reason why a grant should not be made from the Volunteer Vote to aid the Hongkong Corps to send a representative detachment to London. I have no desire, as your other correspondents infer, to oppose any wholehearted desire to have the Colony represented at the Jubilee celebrations, and if the Volunteers themselves are willing to put their hands in their own pockets to contribute'a share of the expense then the Colony might be willing to assist. Can the Volunteers get together a fairly representative detachment of officers, noncommissioned officers and mon? So far as I have learned, the Maxims have considerable difficulty to make a decent muster at an ordinary parade-and London is further away than the Volunteer Headquarters .-ANTI-HUMBUG.

MUSICAL NOTES. IN SHANTUNG.

I am pleased to see that Mr Bentley, the talented Bandmaster of the West York. shire Regiment, this written a new valse; and as it was down on the last 'Tatantula. pregramme I ant out that dance for the purpose of listening to the music. I was so charmed with it that I could not refrain from examining the score. It is a scholarly composition, and several of the numbers are thoroughly original in their treatment The first value is a dreamy melody in the contralto register, taken up by the clarinets with the baritone in unison, followed up as a repetition an octave higher, with the baritone and outhonium in capital harmony; The second number is of a totally different character, equally charming but a littleflorid. The reeds and fines and piccolos here take up the melody and the part is further enhanced by a counter melody for the euphonium, The beauty in the second part lies in the change of the key to that of the minor third. The sudden change of key makes a fine effect, and the melody lends itself capitally to the idea. The progression from No. 2 to No. No. 4 another change takes place in troducing a melody in the key of the minor with a well-marked rhythm. Throughout the entire composition the harmonies are very excellent, and the orchestration shows that Mr Rentley has kept the capabilities of the various instruments always in view. The melodies are enchanting, piquant, and full of swing Mr Bentley is transcribing the composition for the piano, and intends sending it Home for publication. I have not yet seen the piano score, but if the Composer can produce the composition effectively for this instrument. I would say it will be the value of the next season. Mr Bentley has christened his valse 'The Tarantula,' and has dedicated it to Mr Herbert Smith, of Messrs Butterfield and Swire.
